A Summer Evening With the President

by Steven McVicker

How the Rats Stormed the Belfry

They have created a monster. How can I ever be satisfied by covering the Houston City Council, police scandals and the rest of the local garbage?

How will the management, staff, and volunteers ever be able to tolerate my rsvings, tantrums, and fits of madness now that I have come down with the most dreaded of all diseases...Potomac Fever?

Little did I know that what seemed to be a sincere parting gesture by former News Director Hobart Taylor III was in fact a carefully calculated plan to infest my soul with this wretched craving to stay close to the power at all costs. Keeping your finger on the pulse of America, as it is euphemistically known among its victims.

One week before President Jimmy Carter was due to make his first appearance in the Lone Star State since the days of Jerry Ford and the '76 campaign, Taylor approached me about traveling with the President, and more specifically, the White House press corps, after their arrival in Ft. Worth.

That was just a part of the game plan of how this 50,000 watt (soon to be 100,000) broadcasting giant would cover a Presidential visit. There would also be a live broadcast of Carter's speech at a Democratic Party fundraiser and the placement of other strategically located reporters.

Although I privately questioned the judgement involved in the decision to send me to Ft. Worth, considering both our finances and the amount of trouble I might cause for myself upon returning to my native metroplex, I made no objections. There was the rare combination of Taylor's new attitude of "spend, spend, spend..." and General Manager Mike August's agreeing to it.

After four days of unsuccessfully attempting to set up our remote broadcast equipment at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, and just the appropriate amount of medicine, I caught one of those cheap stand-by flights to Dallas' Love Field.

There I stumbled into U.S. Representative Bob Krueger. He had quite a bit to say about Sen. John Tower, his opponent in the November general election, but had few comments indeed about President Carter's visit or whether or not the Shakespearean scholar would seek Carter's help in his bid to unseat the senior Senator of Texas, in a year in which Texas GOP candidates are better financed and better organized than ever before.

A short while after speaking with Krueger, I was greeted by an old high school friend who proceeded to show me a few of the new bars he had discovered since his return to the Big D following his graduation from the University of Texas where he received a degree in English. He is now mowing lawns in the Mockingbird Lane area.

It may seem beside the point, but it was our subsequent adventures that evening which caused me to miss the final credentialing session in Ft. Worth that Friday morning. That meant I had no access to Carter. And I had not carried enough cash for a return trip to Houston. For close to two hours, while suffering from severe protein poisoning and the North Texas heat, I shuffled back and forth between the Hilton, where the Secret Service people were based, and the Tarrant County Convention Center, where Carter was scheduled to address about five thousand civic leaders for a braised barbecue lunch. The scene must have resembled a sinner on The Last Day attempting to get beyond those Pearly Gates without the proper bill of goods.

As I was beginning to develop an explanation which General Manager Mike August might possibly buy, for some unknown reason a White House staffer smuggled me into a multi-box where I would, at least, have access to some actuality, a telephone, and a pair of alligator clips. Once again, clean living paid off.

Rodrigues, a case of particular concern to the Hispanics.

Rodrigues was shot and killed, Russian-Roulette Style, by a Dallas police officer in 1973. In state judicial proceedings the officer received a five year prison term. Since that time state Mexican-American leaders have been seeking additional recourse on the Federal Level!

Recently, the Justice Department announced that after a complete review of the case, no further indictments will be sought, although it who introduced lame-duck Governor Dolph Briscoe (Best known for appointing five dead persons to official positions within the last year.)

Then, perhaps as a going away present or just because no one else dared risk it, L.D. Governor Briscoe was allowed to introduce the President. All through Carter's speech I kept speculating on who he would get to introduce.

As was most of his trip, Carter's speech was void of any great new revelations, as he used his time at the podium to continue his oral bombardment of the Soviet Union and Cuba, and to let the folks know just how many of their fellow Texans are involved in policy making along the Potomac. (POTOMAC!!!!...)

After Carter had chastised the Russians, Cubans, and "Special Interest Groups" (Which he claimed were exploiting differences of opinion existing between his various Cabinet members on the subject of foreign policy in order to avoid attacking him personally) the President and his staff, along with 150+ journalists, were whisked away to Houston. There Carter would be the main speaker at a Democratic Party fund-raiser, which the New York Times suggested had been gently shoved down the throats of some of the good-ole Texas Demos.

Probably the most significant part of Carter's trip, not that any of it was too earthshaking, was his meeting with a group of state and local Hispanics shortly after his arrival in Houston. Several State Representatives and civic leaders had an audience with the President for over thirty minutes. The hospitality of Texas law enforcement officials towards Hispanic inmates was discussed. Carter promised the group (Which did not include an angered Rueben Bonilla, State Director of the League of United Latin-American Citizens) that he would order Attorney General Griffin Bell to personally review the case of Santos will continue vigorously with the other investigations and prosecutions of civil rights violations now being conducted in Texas. That, however, did little to maintain the fence-mending which had been accomplished during Carter's Houston stop. The Statute of Limitations in the Rodrigues case expired on July 24 of this year.

The fund raising event had originally been scheduled for Los Angeles and cancelled, then New York, but was again cancelled, leaving Democratic National Chairman John White, a Texan, little choice. He subsequently left others in the same predicament. Regardless, "A Summer Evening With The President" was sold-out ten days after it was announced, and raised close to $600,000 dollars for the debt-ridden Democratic Party.

There had been much made of Texans up for re-election or those seeking new office (like Krueger and gubernatorial candidate John Hill, the state Attorney General)

The gala affair was indeed star-studded. There were Secretaries Schlesinger, Brown, Marshall, Adams, Krepts, the hierarchy of the White House staff, and thirty-seven state reps, not to mention Majority leader Wright.

To work the five thousand, who had shelled out $500 per plate, into the proper orgasmic state for receiving the President, there were remarks from retiring Congresswomen Barbara Jordon, who introduced John White, who introduced Attorney General Hill, who introduced Senator Lloyd Benson,

KPFT Presents Dubut Performance of Still Music

Houston listeners will get a rare opportunity on Monday, August 7 at 8:30 pm to hear a live performance by a new, professional, Houston based, recorder trio. The group's name is Still Music. Its members are Ralph Holibaugh, Travis Franklin and Tom Bickley. These three gentlemen have been playing and teaching in the early music field in Houston for several years. They formed Still Music for the purpose of offering the public a chance to hear good, relatively unexplored repertoire for three recorders in good, authentic performances. In their radio debut, Still Music will perform a late Baroque work by the German 18th century composer Johann Mattheson. His Sonata IV is for three alto recorders. The other work to be performed on August 7 will be Houstonian Michael Skupin's Romance del ariso de la Fortuna y de la derrota de don Rodrigo. Mr. Skupin wrote his Romance at the request of Still Music specifically for this appearance. Further program notes will be provided on the air by members of the ensemble. Join us Monday August 7, at 8:30 pm when live classical music returns to KPFT via Still Music.

John Snyder Becomes Host of the Renaissance

The Renaissance, KPFT's third longest running program, is changing hosts.

Wait, wait, wait, I don't want to write an article about myself. Can't someone interview me and write a little blurb from that? Write what you wish, but I really do want some notice of the change. I am going to Denton to do graduate study in music (composition) at North Texas State University. I first volunteered at KPFT in the summer (June) of 1975. In September of 1975 Bob Rogers, manager, offered me a time slot on Sundays from noon to 2 pm. The program was called Musica Omnivaga, i.e. music roving everywhere and featured early and other musics. In late '76 the program changed names to the Renaissance and moved to prime time on Thursday nights, then shortly thereafter moved to its present slot on Mondays.

In the beginning it was a real struggle. I would be preempted at the drop of a hat, but I kept on and so did audience. When I first volunteered there was no Fine Arts or Classical music on the air at 90.1. And no one but myself and a few other angry listeners wanted any either. We persevered. As Frederic Douglas wrote, "power concedes nothing if there is no struggle." Managers and power are synonymous. Starting in summer 1977 I co-produced Arts in Houston until November of 1977. The KPFT early Music Ensemble, later called the Camerata Pacifica, was formed, directed, and dissolved by me. We exposed a lot of people to live performances of early music. We must all work diligently to keep community radio representative of all of the community. I appreciate the support Classical music has gotten here at KPFT and emphasize that support must continue and grow!

—Tom Bickley
Concerned Classicist

Sasha

Sasha, the voice the public demands to hear, will be appearing in a number of KPFT slots.

On Tuesday mornings at 11:00 AM, Sasha spends one hour discussing happenings and ideas with artists and authors from Houston and the world.

On Friday afternoons at 5:00 PM, Sasha reads to Houston from Washington Irving's 1830 anthology, Tales of the Alhambra. The book, once a very popular staple of American literature, recreates life among the Spaniards and Moors of Moslem Spain.

Finally, every Sunday at 10:00 PM, Sasha continues with her delightful readings from Ovid's Metamorphosis. The 8 A.D. classic series of stories concerning life among the Roman gods, demigods, and spirits, is produced by KPFT's own Laura Rossen. She has mixed the readings with music especially composed and recorded for the series by KPFT musicologist and composer Tom Bickley. Bickley, an expert on early musics and an adept recorder player, has matched the Pagan masterpiece's mood perfectly. August will bring the series into Book III. The book introduces such famous characters as Cadmus, Actaeon, Semele, Tiresias, and includes the reknowned fable of Echo and Narcissus.

Avant-Garde

Because of the Fourth of July Special and the new Fourth Tuesday feature which showcases the music of Houston avant gardists, July's salute to American composers was much abbreviated. As a result, August will continue providing our audience with the best of the American avant garde, along with other leading composers from around the world. We will pay close attention to the avant garde music of the 1950's.

Again, if you are a performer or composer and have music you want aired on "Fourth Tuesday", contact Bob Kainer or Scott Sommers at the station.

The staff of KPFT-FM 90.1 would like to take this much-belated opportunity to thank Artist Consultants for the Steve Martin tickets they generously donated to us during our March fundraising Marathon.

A limited number of KPFT T-Shirts is left. These shirts are white, 100% cotton Hanes shirts with hand-screened blue and yellow KPFT emblems.

Having emigrated to Canada to avoid the draft, Jesse spent the past ten years exploring his musical and lyrical roots, which reach back to his childhood in Memphis, Tennessee. Bonnie Raitt also gains inspiration from the South—specifically from the likes of bluesmen Fred McDowell, Howlin' Wolf, and Booker White. Recorded at the 1977 New Orleans Heritage Fair, Bonnie's performance features the best of her recent repertoire. Steve Rathe hosts. (NPR)

Embrace the Earth

KPFT's Environmental Task Force declares August, Nuclear Awareness Month, to help some of us volunteers and you, our listeners, become better informed about this most recent potential energy source in our midst. We'll start on the basics of what nuclear power is in its technical, socio-political and ecological senses or aspects.

Do some research and talk with others to find out more about the new neighbor moving in just to the south of Houston twelve miles from matagorda Bay. The nuclear plant has a sign out front which tells everything and nothing, for it reads SOUTH TEXAS PROJECT. Mull it over, then phone in on two-way radio on August 30th after hearing our guests and our informative tapes on the subject for the three previous Wednesday evenings, 8:30-10:00 P.M. KPFT, 526-4000.

EMBRACE THE EARTH has as its aim, consciousness-raising about everything in our environment—natural and man-made conditions relevant to current choices for to the evaluation of current policies—which could have import for our own region and for the world. The program seeks volunteers whether or not they have radio experience. Call Loraine Elms, 926-3084.
